What's the difference?

One of the most common questions I receive is “What is the difference between compound and couverture chocolate?”

There are a few important differences, beginning with composition. Couverture is made with cocoa butter, which is naturally derived from cacao. A tempering method is required to achieve attractive results using couverture for dipping and enrobing.

Compound or coating chocolate is made with non-cacao fats - anything from vegetable oil to palm fat to coconut oil. Compound chocolate will instantly solidify when enrobing, dipping, or coating—no tempering method required! The ease of using a product like this is fantastic when dipping cookies and ice cream bars, and is a practical option when you don't have a pastry chef who has been trained to properly temper couverture.

Choosing compound chocolate doesn't require trading off on quality, either. Premium compound chocolate can match or surpass the quality of a mid-grade couverture. Master Martini has been making confectionary and pastry ingredients in Conselice, Italy since 1982 and their premium quality Centamerica White and Dark Coating Chips are perfect for your winter holiday prep. Made with sunflower lecithin, natural vanilla and RSPO palm kernel oil, this compound coating takes on color and works well in all types of applications, including dipping Valentine's Day strawberries.

FORD FARM[®] CHEESEMAKERS ENGLAND

For over forty years, Ford Farms has been making authentic English Cheddars. They are one of the last bastions of authentic traditional West Country Farmhouse cheddar. Embracing time-honored methods and recipes, they source the finest milk from local, free-range dairy herds that graze on lush pastures. Every step of their meticulous process, from hand-turning curds to pressing cheddars into molds, is performed by skilled cheesemakers.

The natural aging process is celebrated as it gives each cheese character, developing a surface mold that is integral to each cheese's unique flavor. Regular grading ensures each batch reaches its optimum taste, as determined by in-house graders. Beyond Ford Farm's traditional offerings, they have ventured into innovative cheesemaking. Their diverse range includes everything from the crystal-studded Coastal Cheddar, cold-smoked Dorset Red, to their Sage Derby and seasonal favorite, Wensleydale with Cranberry. Elevate your cheese experience with Ford Farm's unwavering dedication to craftsmanship and flavor.

CAVE-AGED CHEESE. WOOCKEY HOLE

FRESH FROM THE CAVES

Wookey Hole has a smooth and creamy mouthfeel and perfect salt balance. Its initial acidity evolves into fruity notes on the palate, and finishes with savory and mildly earthy hints. It's a true crowd-pleaser at gatherings and a delicious snack for kids and adults alike.

DESCRIPTION

Wookey Hole

ITEM

Taking its name from the caves that impart iconic flavors to the cheese, Wookey Hole is made following a traditional recipe, with milk from local herds that graze on the fields of Dorset. The wheels are cloth bound and aged for 15 months in natural limestone caves near the village of Wookey, where the cave environment imparts distinct and complex flavors to the cheese—a stamp of origin. Wookey Hole is loved for its incredible flavor and texture balance. It's not too sweet and not too salty; not too sharp, but it's also not too mild. It's not too crumbly, with just the right amount of creamy.
